Introduction

APA 7th is an author-date referencing style used in many subject areas. It is based on the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association, 7th edition (https://catalogue.curtin.edu.au/permalink/f/15oatim/CUR_ALMA21180713170001951).

This guide is designed for students completing assessments at Curtin University. If you are publishing (e.g., a journal article or PhD thesis), you should consult the official APA manual as requirements may differ.

What is referencing?

Referencing is a standard way to acknowledge sources of information you use in your assessments or research. It identifies the source clearly so others can find it, avoids plagiarism by giving credit to the original author and supports your ideas and arguments with evidence.

Printable referencing guide

A printable APA 7th referencing guide is available on the UniSkills downloads page (https://uniskills.library.curtin.edu.au/downloads).

Note on assignment formatting

Please check your unit outline/Blackboard for assessment formatting requirements (such as fonts, headers, spacing, word counts etc.) and assessment cover sheets. PhD and Masters by research students should consult the relevant publication manual for formatting information.

APA referencing quiz

This short interactive tutorial and quiz should take 10-15 minutes to complete.

In-text citations

In-text citations are included in your writing to acknowledge the sources of information you have used to support your ideas. They briefly identify a work by its author and year of publication and direct readers to a reference list entry with the full details of the source. In-text citations are required for both paraphrasing and quoting. Additional locator information, page 9, such as a page or paragraph number, is also included in some instances.

In brief, this page explains how to:

- present in-text citations: information prominent or author prominent, page 4
- include multiple sources in the same in-text citation, page 5
- cite multiple works with the same author(s) and publication year, page 5
- cite different first authors who have the same surname, page 6
- cite authors who have quoted or referred to other authors, page 7
- format quotations, page 7

Types of in-text citations

In-text citations can be presented in two ways:

Information prominent - The author(s) and year are in brackets.

It could be argued that mental flexibility is a key factor in well-being (Palladino & Wade, 2010).

Author prominent - The author(s) is part of the sentence, and the year is in brackets.

Palladino and Wade (2010) argue that mental well-being is linked with flexible thinking.

Format of in-text citations

The following examples demonstrate how to create in-text citations based on the number of authors and other relevant factors.

Number of authors to include for in-text citations

The format of the authors in the in-text citation changes according to the number of authors for the work.

- One or two authors: Include the author's surname(s) in every citation
- Three or more authors: Use the first author's surname followed by et al. (which means "and others") in all citations
- No author: See the No author, page 10 section on the Reference list page.

Author type	Information prominent	Author prominent
One author	(Smith, 2020).	According to Smith (2020)…
Two authors	(Smith & Jones, 2020).	Smith and Jones (2020) highlighted this…
Three or more authors	(Thomas et al., 2018).	Thomas et al. (2018) recommends…
Organisation as author	(World Health Organization, 2018).	World Health Organization (2018) state…
Organisation with optional abbreviation	First citation: (World Health Organization [WHO], 2018). Later citations: (WHO, 2018).	First citation: World Health Organization (WHO, 2018) have… Later citations: WHO (2018) mentions…

In-text citation variations

Multiple sources in the same citation

Sometimes you might want to include more than one source in a single in-text citation. This is useful when you are showing that many authors agree on the same idea (called synthesising).

- Put all the sources in the same set of brackets
- List them in alphabetical order by the first author's surname
- Separate each source with a semicolon (;)
- Make sure each source is listed in your reference list.

Multiple sources example

There is an established consensus that the current trend towards a warming climate is directly linked to human activity (Hegerl, 1996; Levitus et al., 2017; NASA, n.d.; Robinson et al., 2014).

Multiple works by the same author(s) published in the same year

If you cite multiple works by same author (or authors) published in the same year, add a letter after the year (a, b, c) to tell the works apart.

- In the reference list, order the works alphabetically by their title
- In the in-text citation, include the letter after the year
- If the work has no date (shown as n.d.), use: (n.d.-a), (n.d.-b), etc.

In-text citation

(Clarke & Fawcett, 2014b).

Clarke and Fawcett (2014a) suggest that…

Multiple works shorten to the same in-text citation

If multiple works with three or more authors shorten to the same citation, write out as many author names as needed to tell the sources apart and use et al. for the remaining authors. If the only difference is the last author, write all author names in every citation.

In-text citation example

(Smith, Jones, McDonald et al., 2019)

(Smith, Jones, Black et al., 2019)

OR

Smith, Jones, McDonald et al. (2019)

Smith, Jones, Black et al. (2019)

Different first authors with the same surname

If you use sources where the first authors have the same surname, but different initials, you need to include the initials in your in-text citations. This helps readers tell the authors apart and find the correct entry in your reference list. This rule applies even if the works were published in different years.

Examples

(B. Johnson, 2017). OR According to B. Johnson (2017)…

(M. Johnson et al., 2016). OR M. Johnson et al. (2016) state…

Authors citing other authors

Academic content such as books and journal articles will often contain a lot of citations. You need to credit the original author (primary source) when:

- They are quoted by your source (the secondary source) and you use that quote in your work
- When a specific study is discussed in the secondary source, and you use the findings or ideas from that study without accessing the primary source.

When you cite a secondary source:

- In your in-text citation, include the author and year from the primary (original) source, followed by “as cited in” and the author, year, and page number of the source you actually read (the secondary source)
- In your reference list, only include the secondary source.

In-text citation

“We are part of the land, it is part of us” (Philippe, 2008, as cited in Maldonado et al., 2013, p. 610).

OR

Philippe (2008, as cited in Maldonado et al., 2013) states “we are part of the land, it is part of us” (p. 610).

Quoting

Quoting means copying the exact words from another source into your writing. For more information, check out Integrating sources: Quoting (https://uniskills.library.curtin.edu.au/academic-writing/writing/integrating-sources#quoting) for examples and tips.

Short quotations (40 words or less)

- Use quotation marks around the quote “ ”
- Include the author, year and page number (or another identifier, page 9 if there are no page numbers) in the in-text citation.

“Automatic thinking is thought that is nonconscious, unintentional, involuntary, and effortless” (Aronson et al., 2021, p. 75).

OR

Aronson et al. (2021) define automatic thinking as “thought that is nonconscious, unintentional, involuntary, and effortless” (p. 75).

Quoting example - without page numbers

Lee (2015) states that, “in APA style, double quotation marks are used to enclose quoted material” (para. 1).

OR

“In APA style, double quotation marks are used to enclose quoted material” (Lee, 2015, para. 1).

Long quotations (more than 40 words)

If the quote you want to use is more than 40 words, format it as a block quotation:

- Start the quote on a new line
- Indent the whole quote from the left margin
- Do not use quotation marks
- Put the in-text citation in brackets after the final punctuation mark. Include the author, year of publication, and page number or another identifier, page 9.

Block quotation example

In-text citations are important in academic writing, drawing the parallel between the author’s work and the sources which support it:

> The function of any citation-signaller is to alert the reader to some kind of association between the citing text and the cited text. Citation-signallers may additionally, by using page references or chapter numbers, single out a particular part of the text as especially relevant. (Langham, 2005, p. 361)

Page numbers and other identifiers

When you quote from a source, you should include a page number in your in-text citation. This helps readers find the exact part of the source you are referring to. If the source does not have page numbers, use another type of identifier, such as: a paragraph number, heading or section name, or timestamp.

Identifier	Example
Paragraph number	(World Health Organization, 2025, para. 3).
Heading or section name	(Australian Bureau of Statistics, 2024, Education and Employment section).
Heading or section name with paragraph number	(American Psychiatric Association, 2022, Pica section, para. 1). (Brosnan, 2020, Linking Cooperation section, para. 3).
Timestamp (Audiovisual material) Use the format: HH:MM:SS	(Sandberg, 2019, 1:55:51). (Leaver, 2012, 1:30).
Slide number	(Richardson, 2015, slide 9).

Reference lists

The reference list gives the full details of the sources you used in your work. Reference list entries usually include four parts: author, date, title and source.

Authors

These rules apply to all types of sources, including books, journal articles, and websites. When writing your reference list:

- Start with the author's last name (surname), followed by a comma and their initials. For example, Jane Smith becomes Smith, J.
- Put a full stop after each initial and a space between them. For example: Lee, S. A.
- List the authors in the same order they appear in the source you are referencing.

No author

If a source does not list a personal author, first check if an organisation is named as the author. If there is no author at all, and you are sure the source is credible, follow these steps:

- Use the title of the work instead of the author's name in both your in-text citation and the reference list
- If the title is long, shorten it in the in-text citation to make it easier to read
- If the title is italicised in the reference list, italicise it in the in-text citation too
- If the title is not italicised in the reference list, use double quotation marks around it in the in-text citation
- Use headline style capitalisation (capitalise all major words) in both the in-text citation and in your writing
- In your reference list, arrange the entry alphabetically by the first word of the title (ignore words like A, An, In, or The at the beginning).

In-text citation

(In the Former Capital, 2020). OR The article In the Former Capital (2020) suggests…

("A Higher Education Return," 2016). OR In the article "A Higher Education Return" (2016)…

Reference list

One to 20 authors

- If there is more than one author, add a comma after each name and use an ampersand (&) before the last author
- Include all authors in the reference list entry.

Examples

Burns, T. (2015). Philosophy and poetry: A new look at an old quarrel. The American Political Science Review, 109(2), 326-338. https://doi.org/10.1017/S0003055415000076

Habary, A., Johansen, J. L., Nay, T. J., Steffensen, J. F., & Rummer, J. L. (2017). Adapt, move or die - how will tropical coral reef fishes cope with ocean warming? Global Change Biology, 23(2), 566-577. https://doi.org/10.1111/gcb.13488

Lane, R., & Catling, S. (2016). Preservice primary teachers' depth and accuracy of knowledge of tropical cyclones. Journal of Geography, 115(5), 198-211. https://doi.org/10.1080/00221341.2016.1153133

21 or more authors

- In the reference list entry, list the first 19 authors followed by an ellipsis (…) then the final author's name
- Do not use an ampersand (&) before the final author's name in this case.

Example

Naghavi, M., Abajobir, A. A., Abbafati, C., Abbas, K. M., Abd-Allah, F., Abera, S. F., Aboyans, V., Adetokunboh, O., Afshin, A., Agrawal, A., Ahmadi, A., Ahmed, M. B., Aichour, A. N., Aichour, M. T. E., Aichour, I., Aiyar, S., Alahdab, F., Al-Aly, Z., Alam, K., . . . Murray, C. J. L. (2017). Global, regional, and national age-sex specific mortality for 264 causes of death, 1980-2016: A systematic analysis for the Global Burden of Disease Study 2016. The Lancet, 390(10100), 1151-1210. https://doi.org/10.1016/S0140-6736(17)32152-9

Organisation as author

- Write the organisation name in full in the reference list
- If there are multiple departments listed, use the one most responsible for the content as the author. This is common in government documents, where the full hierarchy might be shown. For example: Government of Western Australia, East Metropolitan Health Service, Royal Perth Hospital. In this case, Royal Perth Hospital is the department that created the content, so it should be listed as the author. The larger organisation (e.g. Government of Western Australia) can be listed as the publisher in the source element.

Examples

Royal Perth Hospital. (2023, April 14). Electronic prescriptions. Government of Western Australia. https://rph.health.wa.gov.au/Patients-and-Visitors/Outpatients/Electronic-Prescriptions

World Health Organization. (2023). Global status report on road safety 2023. https://www.who.int/teams/social-determinants-of-health/safety-and-mobility/global-status-report-on-road-safety-2023

Title capitalisation

All titles, with the exception of journal titles, should be presented in sentence-case capitalisation (where only the first letter of the first word, the first letter of a subtitle and any proper nouns or abbreviations are capitalised).

Example: Youth subcultures: Theory, history and the Australian experience

Journal titles should be presented in headline-style capitalisation (where each significant word is capitalised).

Example: New England Journal of Medicine*

DOIs and URLs

A DOI (Digital Object Identifier) is a unique link to a journal article, book, or online document.

- In APA style, DOIs are written as hyperlinks starting with https://doi.org/. Example: https://doi.org/10.1108/HER-10-2015-0023
- If a DOI is available, use it instead of a URL because it is more stable
- If there is no DOI, include the URL of the source
- All DOIs and URLs should start with https:// and can be presented as either live links or as plain text, but should be consistent throughout the reference list.

Where can I find the DOI?
Look on the first page of the article or in the publication details. If you cannot find the DOI, press CTRL + F (Windows) or Command + F (Mac) and search for “doi”.

Reference list page layout

- Start the reference list on a new page after your main text
- Write References in bold and centre it at the top of the page
- Double space the entire list (both within and between entries)
- Use a hanging indent (https://youtu.be/6vv_vGEuSew) of 1.27cm for each entry.

Extra tips

- Provide a DOI (Digital Object Identifier) or URL, page 12 for online sources
- If there is no issue number, omit this from your reference
- If an article has 21 or more authors, list the first 19 authors, then an ellipsis (. . .) followed by the final author's name
- If the article is from a supplement, replace the issue number with the word Suppl. followed by the letter or number, e.g. (Suppl. A) or (Suppl. 3). For a supplement to a specific issue, include both the issue number and the supplement, e.g. (5, Suppl. 2)

Extra tips

- Some online journals use article numbers instead of a page range. Write the word Article followed by the article number in place of the page range in the reference
- If quoting, include the page number that appears on the article itself in the in-text citation, e.g. (D'Aquino et al., 2024, p. 2).

Advance online publication

Reference components

Author's Surname, Initial(s). (year of publication). Title of journal article: Subtitle. Journal Title in Italics. Advance online publication. https://doi.org… or URL

Castro-Lopez, A., Cervero, A., Galve-Gonzalez, C., & Bernardo, A. (2025). The role of emotions in the university classroom: Implications for engagement and dropout prevention. Active Learning in Higher Education. Advance online publication. https://doi.org/10.1177/14697874251387029

Extra tips

- Advance online publications are articles that have been accepted for publication and made available online, but haven't yet been included in an issue of the journal (so do not have a volume or issue number)
- Before submitting your work, check whether the article has been included in the journal issue yet and, if it has, update the reference details.

King James Bible. (2017). King James Bible Online. https://kingjamesbibleonline.org/ (Original work published 1769)

The Qur'an (M. A. S. Abdel Haleem, Trans.). (2004). Oxford University Press.

Extra tips

- Religious works are usually treated as having no author
- If the original publication date is unknown, omit this from the reference. For versions of religious works that are republished, include the republished date
- If referencing a translated version, include the translator after the title in the reference (e.g. The Qur'an example)
- Include the original publication date in the in-text citation, e.g. (King James Bible, 1769/2017).

Hansen, J. (2019, November 17). Coming together in times of crisis. Sea Shepherd. https://seashepherd.org.au/latest-news/bushfire-commentary

Extra tips

- When the author and the site name are the same, omit the site name
- If there is no date on the webpage, replace the year with (n.d.)
- Do not use a website's copyright date as the publication date for a specific page. If the page shows a last updated date, this can be used
- If available, additional date information can be included to aid retrieval, e.g. (Year, Month) or (Year, Month Day). For the in-text citation, only the year is included
- If you are referencing multiple pages from the same website, published in the same year, page 5, create a separate reference for each. List in alphabetical order by title and add a letter (a, b, c, etc.) after the year in both the in-text citations and reference list entries, e.g. (2021a) (2021b) (n.d.-a) (n.d.-b)

Extra tips

- If the series is still airing, replace the second year with the word present e.g. (2007-present)
- If accessed online, provide a URL (if available) to aid in retrieval

Podcast episode

Reference components

Host Surname, Initial(s). (Host). (year, Month day). Title of episode (Episode Number) [Audio podcast episode]. In Title of podcast in italics. Site Name. URL

Reference list example

Malcolm, L. (Host). (2018, September 16). Tripping for depression [Audio podcast episode]. In All in the mind. ABC Radio National. https://www.abc.net.au/radionational/programs/allinthemind/tripping-for-depression/10223006

Extra tip

- If the podcast does not have an episode number, omit this from the reference

Music - Single song or track

Reference components

Artist Surname, Initial(s). (year). Title of song [Description]. On Title of album in italics. Label.

Reference list examples

Beyonce. (2008). Single ladies (put a ring on it) [Song]. On I am… Sasha Fierce. Sony BMG Music Entertainment.

Childish Gambino. (2014). What kind of love [Song]. MCDJ Entertainment; Glassnote Entertainment Group.

Sheeran, E., & Bieber, J. (2019). I don't care [Song]. On No. 6 collaborations project. Warner Music UK; Def Jam Recordings.

Extra tips

- If the song has no associated album, omit this from the reference (e.g. Childish Gambino example)
- Include a URL if that location is the only means of retrieval (e.g. for artists who only provide music in one location, such as SoundCloud or their website)

Extra tips

- When the author and the source are the same, omit the Source Name
- If there is no guideline number, omit from the reference

Other sources

Generative Artificial Intelligence (Gen-AI)

Before using Gen-AI tools in your assessments, check your unit outline, assessment guidelines or ask your lecturer, as Gen-AI use may be prohibited.

If you use an AI tool (like ChatGPT, Claude, Copilot, etc.) to generate content that you use in your writing, you need to include an in-text citation and reference list entry as you would for other sources. In addition, you need to provide a declaration outlining how the tool was used.

If you have been provided with specific guidelines on how to reference Gen-AI outputs within your unit, you should follow them.

In-text citation

- Provide the author of the tool (e.g. OpenAI) and the year of the version used.

(OpenAI, 2023).

Or

According to OpenAI (2023)…

Example:

OpenAI. (2025, August 21). High school grammar concepts [Generative AI chat]. ChatGPT.

https://chatgpt.com/share/68a77b60-0ee4-800c-9acc-cd3fd573c311

AI tool

Use this when you used the tool but do not need to cite a specific chat.

Reference components

AI Company Name. (Year). Tool Name/Model in Italics [Description]. URL

Example:

Microsoft. (2025). Copilot [Large language model]. https://copilot.microsoft.com

Declaration

If you use Gen-AI in your assessment, you must also write a short declaration. This should include: the name of the tool you used, how much you used it, how the information was created and the exact prompt(s) you entered.

Here is a formal declaration template you can include after the reference list in your assessment:

I acknowledge the use of [insert AI tool name and URL] in the preparation and/or writing of my assessment. I have used [insert AI tool name] to assist with the following:

- Research: I generated an overview of my topic to assist with the research process.
- Idea generation: I generated suggestions on possible topics or viewpoints to explore within my assessment.
- Clarifying: I generated explanations/examples to help me understand confusing or complex topics.
- Structure and organisation: I generated an assessment plan.
- Writing: I generated text which I adapted in my assessment. I have indicated through in-text citations, where text generated by the AI tool has been paraphrased or quoted.
- Other: [Provide a brief description if applicable.]

The following prompts were input into [insert AI tool name]:

- Prompt one
- Prompt two

or

[Insert link to specific AI chat]

Declaration example

I acknowledge the use of ChatGPT (https://chat.openai.com/chat) in the preparation and/or writing of my assessment. I have used ChatGPT to assist with:

- Research: I generated an overview of my topic to assist with the research process.
- Writing: I generated text which I adapted in my assessment. I have indicated through in-text citations, where text generated by the AI tool has been paraphrased or quoted.

The following prompts were input into ChatGPT:

- Are dogs better than cats?

AI-generated images

There are currently no official APA style guidelines for referencing images created by Gen-AI. Below is a suggested format to follow.

Above the figure

- Write Figure in bold. If you use more than one figure, number them in the order they appear in your work (e.g. Figure 1, Figure 2).
- One double-spaced line below the label, include a short title that explains what the figure shows. The title should be in italics, with each major word starting with a capital letter and no full stop at the end
- If there is no title for the image, add your own title in square brackets.

Below the figure

- Start with Note. in italics
- Write a caption that explains where the figure came from
- Include an in-text citation for the AI tool.

Reference list and declaration

- Provide a reference list entry for the AI tool and complete a declaration outlining the use of the tool.

In your writing

- Call out (refer) to the figure by its number in your writing, e.g. As shown in Figure 1… OR Primary prevention has many intersecting dimensions (Figure 2).

Indigenous Knowledges

Indigenous Knowledges are those which are held and developed by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people in Australia or other First Nations people globally. IP Australia (2021) (https://www.ipaustralia.gov.au/understanding-ip/indigenous-knowledge) defines two distinct areas:

- Cultural Expressions - including language, stories, songlines, music, performance, visual arts, crafts, architecture, designs and symbols
- Knowledge - including know-how, practices, skills and innovations, often related but not limited to agricultural, scientific, technical, ecological, medicinal and biodiversity-related knowledge.

How you cite Indigenous Knowledge depends on whether the information is from a published or non-published source.

Published sources

Indigenous authored sources

If you have read a book or journal article, watched a YouTube video or listened to a podcast created by an Indigenous person (the information was recorded in a format that can be retrieved) follow the standard guidelines provided in this guide to create your in-text citation and reference list entry, according to the source type (e.g. journal article, book, video etc.).

Non-Indigenous authored sources

Indigenous Knowledge may be communicated by non-Indigenous authors. Wherever possible, the author, the Indigenous person, and the appropriate community or language group should be referenced within your narrative or in your in-text citations (if an individual is not mentioned, include the community or language group alone). If the source does not provide this information, use the broader term ‘Indigenous Knowledge’ within the citation before the source details.

In-text example - Non-Indigenous authored - Known individual or language group

The Government policy of removing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children from their parents continues to have a considerable impact, despite formally ending in 1969. “Stories such as this need to be told as we, as Aboriginal people, suffer a lot.” (Ryder, Ballardong Noongar, as cited by Clark, 2021, para. 12).

In-text example - Non-Indigenous authored - Unknown individual or language group

The Yugul Mangi Rangers suggest that burning is guided by “the old people” (Indigenous ancestors) and typically occurs directly after the rain. Knowledge is communicated orally and learned through experience (Indigenous Knowledge, as cited by McKemey et al., 2020, p. 1000).

Extra tips

- It may be appropriate to refer to an Indigenous Elder as Aunty or Uncle in your narrative if they are referred to in the source or if you have permission to do so. For example: Uncle Charles, Bundjalung, highlights the importance of stillness and listening to the lessons from Country (Moran & Moran, 2004, p. 56).
- Names of ethnic, national and other regional groups are capitalised, including adjectives associated with these names (e.g. Indigenous).
- In-text references for non-Indigenous authors should follow the format of Authors citing other authors, page 7.

Non-published sources

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples have an oral tradition, meaning their knowledges, beliefs and customs are passed down verbally or through other cultural expressions. If the information has been communicated with you directly (e.g. you have spoken to an Indigenous person directly) and you have permission to use it in your work, follow the guidelines for referencing a Personal Communication, page 50, but also include the Indigenous community or language group, if known. If the source of information is an Indigenous Elder or other Indigenous Knowledge Keeper, also include the name of the Elder or Knowledge Keeper.

For example, the in-text citation will be displayed as:

(I. Cumming, Whadjuk Noongar, personal communication, July 1, 2021).

Extra tip

- Some Elders and Knowledge Keepers will prefer to be listed under their Traditional Name rather than their legal name, sometimes even without listing a legal name. Whenever possible, confirm with the Elder or Knowledge Keeper.

Personal communication

Personal communications are not included in the reference list

- Personal communications may not be acceptable to include in your assessment – please check with your lecturer/tutor before doing so
- Personal communications are works which cannot be recovered by the reader. They include emails, text messages, online chats, letters, memos, personal (unpublished) interviews, telephone conversations, live speeches etc.
- Cite in text only. Give the initials as well as the surname of the communicator and provide as exact a date as possible
- Quotations from participants whom you interviewed as part of your research are treated differently than quotations from published works. See page 278 of the APA 7th manual for more information

Tables & figures

These guidelines are for students doing assessments at Curtin University. They are not meant for people who are publishing their work and making it available to the public, such as in a PhD thesis, journal article, blog, website, or YouTube video. If you are publishing your work, you must get written permission from the copyright owner before using or copying tables and figures. More information is available from Copyright at Curtin (https://www.curtin.edu.au/copyright/) and the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association, 7th edition (https://catalogue.curtin.edu.au/permalink/f/15oatim/CUR_ALMA21180713170001951).

What are tables and figures?

- Tables are numerical values or text displayed in rows and columns.
- Figures include all types of illustrations or images (chart, map, graph, photograph, drawing etc.) other than a table.

Why is referencing tables and figures different?

Referencing tables and figures is different from referencing other materials in APA style. Normally, you just need an in-text citation and a reference list entry to give credit. However, when you reproduce (copy) or adapt a table or figure from another source, the APA style requires you to provide additional copyright attribution.

Using tables and figures in your assessment

Using a published table or figure

If you are reproducing or adapting a table or figure from another source to use in your assessment, follow these steps:

Above the table or figure

- Write Table or Figure in bold
- If you use more than one table or figure, number them in the order they appear in your work (e.g. Table 1, Table 2). Tables and figures are numbered separately
- One double-spaced line below the label, give the table or figure a short title that explains what it shows. The title should be in italics, with each major word starting with a capital

letter and no full stop at the end

Below the table or figure

- Write a caption that explains where the table or figure came from
- Start with Note. in italics. Then write "From" if you copied it exactly, or "Adapted from" if you changed it (for example, by changing the layout or only using part of the data)
- Include the title, author, year it was published, and other source details. See Caption components, page 62 section
- Say who owns the copyright and what year it was published (e.g. Copyright 2015 by IWA Publishing). If it uses a Creative Commons licence, include that instead (e.g. CC BY-NC). You can find more information in the Copyright and Creative Commons images, page 66 section
- Double-space the caption.

Reference list

- Add a full reference for the source of the table or figure in your reference list. Follow the APA referencing guide.

In your writing

- Call out (refer) to the table or figure by its number in your writing, e.g. Primary prevention has many intersecting dimensions (Figure 2). OR As shown in Table 1…

Example of a table adapted from a journal article

Using tables or figures in PowerPoint

Note: Always check with your tutor if they have specific guidelines for referencing in PowerPoint presentations.

When you include tables or figures in your PowerPoint presentation, you need to show where they came from if they have been adapted or copied from another source. You can choose to put the caption(s):

- On the slide, directly underneath the table or figure OR
- At the end of your presentation, before your reference list (see below instructions).

On the slide where the table or figure appears

- Above the table or figure, write Table or Figure in bold
- If you use more than one table or figure, number them in the order they appear in your work (e.g. Table 1, Table 2). Tables and figures are numbered separately
- One double-spaced line below the label, give the table or figure a short title that explains what it shows. The title should be in italics, with each major word starting with a capital letter and no full stop at the end

Using your own table or figure

You may wish to include your own photograph or image in an assessment, or you may create a table or figure from data that you have collected yourself. As you have created the table or figure, there is no need to cite a source but it should still be formatted properly.

- Write Table or Figure in bold
- If you use more than one table or figure, number them in the order they appear in your work (e.g. Table 1, Table 2). Tables and figures are numbered separately
- One double-spaced line below the label, give the table or figure a short title that explains what it shows. The title should be in italics, with each major word starting with a capital letter and no full stop at the end

Below the table or figure

- No citation needed (you may wish to add a note to say Photograph by Author or similar if it is not clear that it is your own work)

In your writing

- Call out (refer) to the table or figure by its number in your writing, e.g. As shown in Table 1… OR Primary prevention has many intersecting dimensions (Figure 2).

Using published data to create a table or figure

When you create your own table or figure using data from a published source (e.g. a government report, journal article, or book), an in-text citation and reference list entry is usually sufficient acknowledgement of the source material.

- Write Table or Figure in bold
- If you use more than one table or figure, number them in the order they appear in your work (e.g. Table 1, Table 2). Tables and figures are numbered separately
- One double-spaced line below the label, give the table or figure a short title that explains what it shows. The title should be in italics, with each major word starting with a capital letter and no full stop at the end

Within or below the table or figure

- Show where the data came from by adding citations in the table or figure (e.g. next to each row or column) or below it.

In your reference list

- Include a full entry for each source (book, article, website, etc.) in your reference list, following APA style.

In your writing

- Call out (refer) to the table or figure by its number in your writing, e.g. Primary prevention has many intersecting dimensions (Figure 2). OR As shown in Table 1…

Caption components

Tips for captions

- Table and figure captions are formatted differently to reference list entries
- When the author and the publisher/source are the same, omit the publisher/source from the caption
- Titles appear in headline capitalisation where each major word starts with a capital letter, e.g. Climate Change in Australia
- Author/editor initials appear before their last name, e.g. P. E. Marik

Example assessment

Australia's Indigenous people have a longstanding connection with country, valuing it for a range of cultural, social and economic reasons, in a history that goes back an estimated 60,000 years (Jacobsen et al., 2020; Olsen & Russell, 2019). Prior to colonisation, Australia comprised over 250 societies that covered the entire landmass, groups that had their own language, customs and responsibility for managing the land (Karidakis & Kelly, 2017). This responsibility has only recently begun to be handed back to Indigenous people, with Jacobsen et al. (2020) reporting 134 million hectares of land in Australia, 17% of the total landmass, as Indigenous owned. A map produced by the Australian Bureau of Agriculture and Resource Economics and Sciences (ABARES, Figure 1) shows that the bulk of this land is located in central Australia.

Dillon et al. (2015) defines Indigenous land as "all land over which Indigenous people have use and rights as recognised through ownership, management, access or other special rights" (p. 6). Incorporating these broader definitions, Table 1 breaks down the total area of recognised Indigenous land in Australia.

Table 1

Indigenous Land Management Categories and Size (Hectares)

Category	Definition [a]	Total area [b]
Owned and managed	Lands that are both owned and managed by Indigenous communities	142,306,000
Managed	Lands that are managed but not owned by Indigenous communities	32,357,000
Co-managed	Owned and managed by non-Indigenous parties, but agreements guarantee Indigenous people rights in managing land	28,028,000
Special rights	Lands subject to Native Title determinations and active Indigenous Land Use Agreements	304,531,000

Copyright and Creative Commons images

Copyright is a law that gives creators (such as writers, artists, musicians) the right to control how their work is used. If you make something original, you automatically own the copyright. Others need your permission to copy, share, or change it. Creative Commons is a system that lets creators share their work more freely. It does not remove copyright, instead it provides licenses (https://creativecommons.org/share-your-work/cclicenses/) that say what others can do with the work—whether they can copy it, change it, or use it for commercial purposes. It is a way to share while still retaining some rights.

To find out more about copyright and Creative Commons, see the Copyright toolkit (https://copyright.library.curtin.edu.au/).

Reproducing images

When you reuse images, it is important to follow copyright rules. Just because an image is easy to find online does not mean you can use it freely. You need to check if you have permission. Some websites let you download images for free, but others—like Shutterstock or Getty Images—require you to pay for a license. A good way to stay within the rules is to use images that have an Open License, are under a Creative Commons (CC) license, or are in the public domain.

Open license, Creative Commons and public domain images

An Open License means the creator has given permission for others to use and share the image, often with few restrictions. Creative Commons is a type of open license that tells you how you can use the image without needing to ask for permission. Public domain images are either no longer protected by copyright or have been released by the creator for anyone to use freely.

The following websites provide easily accessible advance search filters to quickly identify Creative Commons or public domain images:

- flickr (https://www.flickr.com/search/?text=)
- Openverse (https://openverse.org)
- Wikimedia Commons (https://commons.wikimedia.org/wiki/Main_Page)
- The New York Public Library Digital Collections (https://digitalcollections.nypl.org/)
- State Library of Victoria copyright-free image search (https://www.slv.vic.gov.au/images) (mainly historical images)

Locating copyright or Creative Commons information

Sometimes it can be difficult to locate copyright or license information associated with a table or figure. If it is not presented alongside the content you want to use, do a search of the document for either ‘copyright’ or ‘CC’ using Ctrl + F (command + F on a Mac).

On some websites, you might want to check the footer for a link to ‘Terms of use’ which will provide you with the information you need for copyright acknowledgement.

Referencing checklist

This brief checklist highlights some general points to pay attention to when editing your in-text citations and reference list. For the components and formatting required for specific reference types, please consult the relevant sections of this APA referencing guide, page 1.

In-text citations

- [ ] Have you included an in-text citation, page 4 each time you have paraphrased, summarised or quoted information from another source?
- [ ] Are direct quotations, page 7 enclosed in quote marks with a page number or paragraph provided, in addition to the author and date of the source?
- [ ] Does each in-text citation have a corresponding reference list entry?

Reference list

- [ ] Does the reference list, page 13 only include sources that have been cited in the text?
- [ ] Does the reference list start on a new page or slide, after the content of your assessment, with the word 'References' in bold and centred at the top of the page?
- [ ] Does the reference list have double-spacing, both within and between references?
- [ ] Is the reference list ordered alphabetically by the first author's last name or name of the organisation responsible for the content? If the reference has no author, does it use the first significant word in the title?
- [ ] Do all references have a hanging indent of 1.27cm? How do I create a hanging indent? (https://youtu.be/6vv_vGEuSew)
- [ ] Are titles, with the exception of journal names, in sentence case capitalisation, where only the first word, proper nouns, and words following certain types of punctuation (full stops, colons, etc.) are capitalised?

  Example: Youth subcultures: Theory, history and the Australian experience

- [ ] Are journal names presented in full (not in an abbreviated form) and in headline-style capitalisation, where every significant word is capitalised?

  Example: New England Journal of Medicine*

- [ ] Do all online sources have an address to help the reader locate the item? Either a DOI (Digital Object Identifier), page 12 or a URL if there is no DOI?
- [ ] Are all DOIs preceded by https://doi.org/?
- [ ] Are all DOIs and URLs presented consistently either as live links (blue and underlined) OR plain text that is not underlined?
